

AIN'T SHE SWEET!

In a previous issue I told the story of the 97 year old lady that on two occasions asked "Do you have a shovel" and I obliged to load her tiny buckets up with woodchips. I am still amazed that at her age she is still going to the compost site to get mulch.

*Well I was back today after the recent storms had given me cause to cut up some tree limbs and return to the compost site to unload a trailer load of limbs and branch's. I had just begun to unload the first and very heavy limb when I was treated to "Do you need some help" - yes, you guessed it. She must be 98 now but she was offering to help me unload my trailer with a beaming smile. Oh, what a day!

Plant "Imagination"

Maltese Cross is blooming now! Maltese cross is Lychnis chalconica. The derivation of the plant's common name is easily seen if you compare the flower structure to Maltese cross graphics. Other common names include "London pride" and "Jerusalem cross."
